DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 9/28/07 has been entered.

Claims 1, 3-8, 25, 26, 31-37 are presented for examination. Claim 2 is cancelled. Claims 9-24, 27-30 are withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1, 7, 8, 25, 31-33, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over De Groot (6,421,047 B1) in view of Kusmaul (WO 96/07151).

Re claims 1, 25, 31, 32, De Groot discloses community service offering apparatus (10) for exchanging information with a plurality of user terminals connected by a network, the apparatus comprising virtual space information storing means for storing (see col. 3- space modules read as the storage means), in advance, virtual space information specifying a plurality of types of virtual spaces to be offered for purchase, the virtual spaces configured to enable interaction between avatars (see e.g. col. 1, lines 45-46 - users can interact with one another and with the objects in the virtual world); host means col. 5 lines 29-32 is read as the virtual space offering means for allowing a user of a plurality of users to select one of said virtual spaces as a user-specific virtual space leased or owned by said first user of the plurality of users, each user corresponding to at least one avatar (see e.g. col. 4, lines 66-67 – an avatar is preferably a visible and audible representation of the user in the virtual world); displaying means for displaying said user-specific virtual space (see e.g. col. 3, lines 44-46).

De Groot is silent regarding a virtual space information specifying a plurality of types of virtual spaces to be offered for selection; a charge controlling means for charging said first user of the plurality of users a fee to own or lease said user-specific virtual space, wherein said fee is based on the specified type of said user-specific virtual space and only said first user of the plurality of users is charged to own or lease said user-specific virtual space and the remaining plurality of users may access the virtual space without charge.

However, Kusmaul discloses a virtual space information specifying a plurality of types of virtual spaces to be offered for selection (see e.g. col. 3, lines 14-16 – the system associates with each tenant certain categories of rentable virtual space – i.e. an office, a store, a conference room and so forth); a charge controlling means for charging said first user (the vendor/tenant) of the plurality of users a fee to own or lease said user-specific virtual space wherein said fee is based on the specified type of said user-specific virtual space (See e.g. col. 3, lines 27-28 - A tenant is thus charged for the square bytes associated with the "kind" and "size" of the space it rents; col. 4, lines 28-32) and only said first user of the plurality of users is charged to own or lease said user-specific virtual space and the remaining plurality of users may access the virtual space without charge (see e.g. col. 6, lines 24-25 – the end users are not charged fees to enter or to remain in the village; col. 8, lines 29-32).

Therefore it would have been obvious, at the time of the invention to a person of ordinary skill in the art to modify De Groot and include the steps of the virtual space selection feature and a charge controlling means for charging said first user of the plurality of users a fee to own or lease said user-specific virtual space, as taught in Kusmaul, in order to offer a choice of space, encourage guest users and promote commercial activities.

Re claims 7 and 8, De Groot, discloses a space slave module, which creates objects in the space answering managing objects, which inherently must be displayed. Since the slave module can only be operated by a person who owns the server, this answers the limitation of only privileged users managing the objects (see, e.g. col. 3, lines 36-41).

4. Claims 3-6, 26, 34, 35, 37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over De Groot (6,421,047 B1), in view of Kusmaul (WO 96/07151), in further view of Leahy et al. (6,219,045 B1).

De Groot, in view of Kusmaul, lacks the specific details of the claims. However, Leahy et al. disclose the features as follow:

Re claims 3, 4, 5, 26, 34, 35 and 37, Leahy et al. disclose that each room has a given maximum number of avatars (see e.g., col. 13, lines 21-26).

Since each room has a given maximum number of avatars (objects), the limitations on the virtual space fee based on number of users, objects, types of objects, amount of data constituting a real storage area, specified type of said user-specific virtual space, and the amount of virtual space owned or leased by said purchasing/first user in the virtual world are deemed an obvious variant of Leahy et al. which monitor popularity in conjunction with billing to bill higher at the most popular spaces.

Re claim 6: Leahy et al. disclose using a user ID to gain access to a virtual room and hence is an access managing means for managing access to said user-specific virtual space (see e.g. col. 5, lines 62-63).

It would have been obvious, at the time of the invention, to a person of ordinary skill in the art to modify De Groot, in view of Boyd, and include an access managing means, as taught by Leahy et al., in order to control network traffic and be compensated for use of the virtual space.

5. Claims 33 and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over De Groot (6,421,047 B1), in view of Kusmaul (WO 96/07151), in further view of Boyd (60/185,902 – provisional 2005/0004983).

Re claims 33 and 36, De Groot, in view of Kusmaul, do not specifically disclose a community service offering apparatus wherein the fee to own or lease said user-specific virtual space in the virtual world is a monthly fee.

However, Boyd discloses a community service offering apparatus wherein the fee to own or lease said user-specific virtual space in the virtual world is a monthly fee (see e.g. page 36, lines 1-3).

Therefore, it would have been obvious, at the time of the invention, to a person of ordinary skill in the art to modify De Groot, in view of Kusmaul, and include the step wherein the fee to own or lease said user-specific virtual space in the virtual world is a monthly fee, as taught by Boyd, in order to establish a predetermined billing cycle.
